Chapter 1745

Each and every sentence was stabbing Hana in the heart.

That afternoon, Hana went back alone to the village where she and Hector had lived. In the end, the villagers told Hana that Hector had not been living there for a very long time. He had bought a house at the intersection between the city and the suburbs of South City. He even opened a store there and had been doing quite well in the past few years. Hana then hid in the poor house that they had originally been living in, and cried inconsolably while hugging some of the small clothes that her daughter had left behind.

What had she done wrong for the Heavens to punish her like that? She had lost her mother growing up. She then lived an incomparably poor and miserable life with her father. After she grew up a little, her father married her stepmother, and she began abusing her. She was finally saved by someone with

She was finally saved by someone with great difficulty, but that person caused her a lifetime of misery instead. At that point, her reputation had been tattered. She was labeled as a sl*t, wh*re, a woman who had never taken care of her daughter, and many other names. She could ignore all of that. However, her daughter did not wish to acknowledge her as her mother. At that moment, Hana even had the thought of killing someone. Right at that time, Hector came. ①

“I knew you would hide here. Hana Sharpe! You brought this on yourself!” A very well-dressed Hector, who was dressing in casual clothes, appeared coldly in front of Hana.

“What exactly have I done wrong? I was the one who gave birth to my daughter. The family properties were my hard-earned money. Hector, what exactly have I done wrong?” Hana looked at Hector with tearful eyes.

Hector sneered. “Hana Sharpe! You were wrong to be flirting with those men behind my back! It is your fault to have men after men who liked you! When you replenished your stocks in the middle of Hana cried and gritted her teeth. "Hector

"So?" Hector sneered viciously. "My

"I want to take you to court!" Hana said.

"Do it! Give it to the judge." Hana had already gone all out. She was only thinking of getting custody of her daughter. She wanted to live together with her daughter and never be apart again! It did not matter if the intimate photos of her being in bed with another man were made public or if it was brought to court!

"You d*mned woman are so shameless? A person as shameless as you truly don't care about the consequences at all! Are you not afraid that I will spread these photos of you sleeping with another man and being naked to every corner of the streets?"

"I'm not afraid!" Hana said, as her tears streamed down her cheeks.

"Are you not even going to consider your daughter's feelings?" Hector asked. "Have you thought about it? She is going to college soon. After studying for four years, she can then get a job in a big company in South City. After that, she can find a decent boyfriend and get married. She can buy a house in the town"

"Oh! I know! After all, she is not your daughter. She is my daughter! Therefore, you can't wait for my daughter to find out that her mother's naked photos were all over the streets when she is going to college soon. After that, you can't wait for her to fail to complete her studies, can't wait for her to go crazy because of this matter and have her future ruined from then on!"

Hana could not bear to listen to Hector saying that. She held on to Hector's leg. "Please, I'm begging you to stop saying that! My daughter...I won't try to have her acknowledge me as her mother anymore! Please don't ruin her!"

Chapter 1746

Even if her daughter did not acknowledge Hana as her mother, her daughter was still Hana's weak spot. She could not stand listening to the possibility of her daughter's life being ruined and having to follow in her mother's footsteps in the future. As long as her daughter could have a bright future, live a happy life, get married and have children, as well as a husband who loved her, Hana felt that it would be worth it even if she died. It would also be worth it even if her daughter did not acknowledge her as her mother for life. Perhaps such was Hana's fate in this life, and she was ready to resign to her fate. However, the catch was if her daughter could be happy and obediently go to college. After that, get a job and find a good man to marry.

Hector looked at Hana, whose stance would not be any softer, and said, "From now on, you have to save five thousand dollars a month for my daughter as her wedding gift in the future!"

"Alright," Hana promised without even thinking about it. She still had more than “Right,” Hana promised without even thinking about it. She still had more than a hundred dollars on hand. She was still young. If she were to work a few more jobs and work harder, she could still make almost five thousand dollars a month. If all else failed, she could save on her daily expenses. She had no other goals in life anymore. She was just working for her daughter to live a good life.

“However, I have a condition,” Hana said slowly.

Hector sneered. “How are you to talk about conditions with me?”

Hana continued, “Open an account under both our names. You will input half the password and I will input the other half!”

“You!” Hector said.

“If you don’t agree, then I will just end my life now!” said Hana coldly. Since her daughter no longer acknowledges her as her mother, then what is the point for Hana to be alive? She might as well just end it. If she could still fight for a share of wealth for her daughter in the remaining years of her life, then Hana was willing to

...ors of her life, then Hana was willing to live soullessly like the walking dead, even if she could only take a look at her daughter from afar.

Seeing Hana looking so despondent, Hector had no choice but to agree. "Alright! As you wish! It's for my daughter, after all!"

That night, after Hector walked out of the village that they had once lived in, Hana remained there alone, crying while hugging her daughter's little clothes. Her cries attracted neighbors who got up to go to the bathroom in the middle of the night. The neighbor, a man and a woman, took Hana home and gave her a cup of hot water to drink. The man consoled her. "My child, you truly have a miserable life. How could you have met such a d*mned man like Hector Caven?"

The woman wiped Hana's tears away. "Don't cry anymore, my child. Everybody in the village knows what kind of man Hector is. The entire village resented him for what he had done behind your back when you were pregnant. If you want to take Hector to court, all of us from the village can be your witness," said the "Age can be your witness," said the woman. She told Hana that because she truly was furious.

Hana, however, shook her head.

"My child, do you still have feelings for that gambling addict?" The man looked at Hana in puzzlement.

Hana shook her head again. "My daughter ...my daughter is too pitiful. In order to raise my daughter, I had never been by her side when she was growing up. I had never hugged her to sleep anymore since she was two months old. Even if there were a hundred things bad about Hector, he still loves my daughter. He had taken great care of her. My daughter is very happy being together with him. If I truly take Hector to court, then my daughter will certainly be ruined for life. I can't let my daughter walk the same path that I did. I don't wish to ruin my daughter..."

The man felt sorry for Hana. "My child, Tessa doesn't acknowledge you as her mother..."

"It's fine. It doesn't matter. If she doesn't acknowledge the fact that I am her mother, then so be it. I...I just want to ● mother, then so be it. I...I just want to be able to look at her from far away. Just one look and I am content with it." Said Hana.

Seeing Hana like that, the woman was covered in tears. "You truly are a mother. Which mother wouldn't die for their own children? Poor Hana. Why is your life so miserable? That child...Tessa is still young. When she grows up, gets married and has her own children, she will understand her mother's difficulties." 1

"Hana, you poor child with a miserable life. Your sufferings will certainly come to an end and good things will come."

That night, Hana spent the night in the neighbor's house.

Chapter 1747

The couple, the neighbors, prepared noodles as breakfast for Hana. Many other neighbors also came to visit Hana. They all persuaded her that she must stay alive. The day her daughter would acknowledge her would come. They warmed Hana's heart quite a bit and also gave her the hope to keep on living. Since then, Hana had stayed in South City. In the following four years, she rented and stayed at a house near Tessa's college. After that, she got four jobs nearby as well, and she was able to make eight thousand dollars a month. She had saved five thousand dollars of that for Tessa.

Later on, Tessa graduated from college and got into the Ford Group as an intern. After Tessa's work became stable, only then did Hana move away. However, she would still appear in front of her daughter once in a while just for the sake of taking a few more glances at her daughter, even if Hana had to walk away without saying anything after just a glance.

However, Hana's wish and hope was a

However, Hana's wish and hope was a kind of nightmare that Tessa could get rid of. At first, Tessa would chase Hana away. Later on, she started to curse at Hana, and then the cursing became more and more intense. Following that, as long as Tessa saw Hana, she would curse Hana to go to hell every time. Sometimes she also would warn Hana that she wanted to call the police! However, even so, Hana had never backed down. She still went to see her daughter from time to time.

The villagers felt that Hana was truly too aggrieved. All of them hoped to help Hana by being the peacemaker and clearly tell Tessa the truth, but Hana was afraid it would be a huge blow for Tessa.

Therefore, Hana never agreed. This only made Tessa more and more aggressive towards Hana. It was not until when Tessa slapped her own mother twice in front of so many people and even cursed her own mother to be a sl*t and b*tch that she had truly completely broken Hana's heart. Perhaps it was because Hana was emotionally exhausted after holding on for too long? Perhaps it was because Tessa was already an adult and Hana felt that she should be able to bear everything? However, Hector and Hana because Tessa was already an adult and Hana felt that she should be able to bear everything? However, Hector and Hana were not used to it. ①

After Hana had left on the day that Tessa slapped Hana twice, Hector egged Tessa on once again that she must not let Hana off the hook. He told Tessa that Hana was a woman with no limit and she certainly would snatch away Tessa's rich boyfriend. Tessa believed her father's words and she had witnessed that Hana indeed had snatched Zayn away. Therefore, the hate Tessa had for Hana in her heart was stronger than ever. ①

However, what Tessa did not expect was that among the guests who attended Hana's wedding, the neighbors from the village that she had once lived in when she was a child would actually be there. It was very clear that these neighbors had a good relationship with Hana. Just like the moment when Tessa stood in the village that she had not been to for more than a decade and looked at the old woman in tears recalling the past of Hana and Hector's family of three. The truth that came out of these villagers' mouths was the complete opposite of what Hector had told her since she was a child. At that

The old woman looked at Tessa after she was done recalling the incident. "The clothes that you wore, the money for your school, for raising you, the store that your dad is running now, as well as all the expenses in your house were paid with your mom's hard-earned money. Your dad is just a gambling addict! You and your dad should be d*mned! D*mned!"

Tessa shuddered and was speechless.

Chapter 1748

Tessa had originally come to the village with resentment. She had originally wanted to condemn that woman that she hated so much that she desperately wanted to rip her apart in an instant. However, at that moment, the whole village was scolding her.

“Every mouthful of milk you had was paid with the money your mother earned for you!”

“Your mother was tricked into following your father back! She was still a child when she gave birth to you. She was not even eighteen yet! When your mother was giving birth to you on the delivery bed, your father was following around with a widow!”

“We sent your mother tomato soup, but your mother did not even get to have a bite. It was all taken by your father to exchange for money, and then he went to gamble with that money!”

“Your mother was so thin that she had no breast milk at all. You were so hungry that you wailed!”

that you wailed!"

"It has not yet been a month since giving birth to you, your mother had to carry you and wash dishes for others in the winter. She earned five hundred dollars a month, and it was all spent on your formula powder!"

"After you've grown bigger, your mother went around doing odd jobs while carrying you! Later on, she only put you at home because it was truly unsafe to be carrying you!"

"If she hadn't gone out to work, your entire family would have starved to death! Starve to death!"

"That father of yours! That d*mned father of yours! He had an affair with a widow and his junk was bitten off by her! He has not been a man since then! Surely, your mother can't live without consummation at the age of twenty, right? The reason your mother didn't remarry was for you! It was for you to have an unbroken family with both your parents around! Your father was infected with that dirty disease by that widow. That widow had died, but your father had post-exposure preventive medicine!

Post-exposure preventive medicine!

Didn't you know that? It's been so many years. It's been twenty years. The money for your father's medicine was earned by your money!"

Watching these people condemn her one after another, Tessa felt that she was in a very disadvantaged situation as if she had fallen into the abyss.

"Do you think that your mother went looking for you at the Ford Group to stop you was to get in the way of your happiness? However, do you know that Master Zayn was a playboy in South City seven years ago and how many women he had toyed with?"

"Master Zayn was ten years older than you! A whole ten years!"

"Once bitten, twice shy! Your mother was tricked by your father, who was an old man, back then! He had tricked her and had been leeching off her for life! She, a lone woman, was almost drained by you and your father!"

"Then, what happened? You slapped your mother! You hit her in the face! You truly are something! Tessa, you and your “Don’t disturb your mother anymore in the future! She is already married. She has no relations with you and your father anymore in the future! Haven’t you always hated her anyway? You are also already twenty-two years old. You don’t need her to pay you child support anymore. Therefore, if you still want to save face, then don’t disturb her!”

Tessa was speechless. In fact, she had always known that her mother had been giving her five thousand dollars every month, and she even accepted it. Every time she received notification that her mother had transferred money to her, Tessa would exclaim happily to her father. “Dad, look, the money transferred by that woman is in! Dad, it was so easy for her to transfer money to us. We shouldn’t have asked for five thousand dollars. We should’ve asked her for ten thousand dollars! Drain her!”

In actuality, in the later couple of years, Hana had been giving Tessa ten thousand dollars every month. Actually, Hana had wanted to have a proper talk with Tessa wanted to have a proper talk with Tessa countless times, but Hana was cursed away by Tessa most of the time. Some of the times, Tessa simply just wanted to viciously scold Hana.

However, Hana had never spoken ill of Hector in front of her. Hector, on the other hand, had been instilling the idea again and again in Tessa's mind since she was growing up that her mother was a whore. Hector told her that her mother did not care about her at all, but she only cared about fooling around other men.

It turned out that everyone in the village knew that it was her father's fault from the very beginning. It turned out that her father was a gambling addict. It turned out that her father has a dirty disease. Tessa had always known that her father had been taking medicine all this while and his medical expenses every month were very expensive. She had asked her father what condition he had and how come he had been taking medication for so many years.

Her father had said, "It's a contagious liver disease. I was overworked when I was young and when my body was weak, I accidentally was infected by someone. I

It actually was not just a liver disease! It actually was a dirty disease!

“You’re all talking nonsense! All of you are talking nonsense! My dad clearly contracted the disease from exhaustion! He brought me up by himself. He had to play the role of a father and a mother. It was truly hard for him! He got sick because of exhaustion!” Tessa yelled at the crowd in tears.

Everyone there sneered, especially those slightly younger ones.

“You’re just fooling yourself, right? You’ll be able to know what condition your father has if you go to the hospital to check! Don’t forget, your father has the condition, but your mother doesn’t! The reason why your father was infected was that he caught it while fooling around outside while your mother was pregnant with you!”

“If you want to talk about putting thoughts on another person outside, your father had done it way earlier than your mother! Your father had brought it on himself!”

“Other! Your father had brought it on himself!”

“Your mother is truly pitiful. If she doesn’t look for a man outside, could it be that she, a woman in her early twenties, had to live her life without intercourse for the rest of her life? Besides, should she even do that? Your father didn’t even have a wedding with your mother! To this day, he still hasn’t even gone to get the marriage certificate with your mother! It’s not illegal at all for her to be looking for a man outside!”

Tessa was speechless. She did not even know how she left that village. Her mind was completely blank. When she got home, she saw that her father was hugging a beer can.

“You’re back?” asked Hector.

Tessa nodded mechanically. “Mm-hmm.”

“That b*tch’s wedding is over?” asked Hector again.

“I don’t know,” Tessa answered.

Hector immediately got up and he swayed as he was unstable on his feet. He looked a

● He was unstable on his feet. He looked at Tessa with bloodshot eyes. "Didn't you ruin that woman's wedding? My good daughter! No matter what, she is also my wife! She had cheated on me more times than I can count myself! Now, not only did she cheat on me, but she actually even snatched away your boyfriend! She is not human! She is the devil! You won't be able to find such a bad woman in this world! My dear daughter, you mustn't let her get her way..."

Hector's hatred sent a chill down Tessa's spine. The way she looked at her father was as if they were strangers. "Dad, how long have you had your condition?"

Hector was actually not drunk. He could not drink alcohol because of his condition. He was drinking for the sake of pretending to be pitiful in front of his daughter. He wanted to make his daughter hate Hana more and more. He did not expect that at that moment, his daughter would ask about his condition coldly.

On top of the same image of being a loving father, Hector also looked pitiful. "I have failed you. Your mother did not

I worked in the morning, but the pay was not enough to buy your formula powder. Therefore, I worked day and night. It was during that time when I picked up another person's leftover bun and porridge to eat, I was infected. Since then, I became a carrier of the disease for life. My good daughter, why did you suddenly think of asking me this?" Hector looked at Tessa with tears in her eyes.

However, that time, Tessa did not hug her father and cried bitterly again. She said to her father with clear articulations, "Today, I went to the village where we used to live in."

Hector was speechless.

"The disease you have is that kind of incurable dirty disease spread to you by that widow from the same village, right?" Tessa viciously grabbed her own father. "You have been lying to me all along!"
